

Have you had close contact with someone with COVID-19?

You're a close contact if you:

- Spent 15 minutes within 6 feet of someone known to have COVID-19, either after they were diagnosed or up to two days before they started showing symptoms.
- Had multiple brief exposures adding up to 15 minutes, especially if indoors, and even if you wore face coverings or masks.
- Had unprotected direct contact with an infected person's sneeze, saliva, or cough.

If this sounds like you, don't wait for a public health official to call!
Get tested and stay home.

Close contacts do not include healthcare workers who use infection control precautions, including all recommended personal protective equipment, while caring for someone with COVID-19.

For more information about isolation or quarantine,
<https://covid-19.acgov.org/isolation-quarantine>

