Necessity of COVID-19 Testing

As there is no specific treatment for COVID-19 infection and COVID-19 testing capacity remains limited, people with mild illness should remain home until fully recovered. They should sleep in a separate room and use a separate bathroom from other household members when possible. Clean common areas regularly.

- Contact your healthcare provider by phone if you think you may have COVID-19 because of symptoms or exposure to someone suspected or known to be infected with COVID-19.
- If you have confirmed or suspected COVID-19, you must follow Blanket Isolation and Quarantine Orders.
- If you develop emergency warning signs for COVID-19, you should get medical attention immediately.
- If you do not have insurance and are not receiving medical care at a clinic already, you may contact HealthPAC or the Community Health Clinic Network.
